For a few reasons, I hate the blended approach. First it is bad for GLOBAL WARMING. We (Atherton) will look like idiots doing a half ass job here. Eventually, all outside work will be electric as our state will mandate it. The current types of gas equipment (many are two cycle engines) are truly horrible for pollution. All gas powered boats for example are all required to be 4 cycle.

It is illogical to think anyone working in Atherton can afford both gas and electric equipment. Hence NO ONE will be buying electric, until it is 100% mandated. Thus, we (the home owners) will be policing the silly time periods of gas versus electric. I already feel like a cop when workman work outside our time periods, so I don't want more to do more policing.

We should be better examples at this rather than being easier on this policy. I would MUCH prefer to sell or give my electric equipment to workman. Maybe some kind of financial aid too. But to give up and allow workman to do nothing is terrible. Keep this email because I will guarantee nobody will comply because the workman will just pretend ignorance instead of having electric equipment.
